

Lewis Collection: On Display at the Fitzwilliam Galleries

The Lewis Collection was assembled by the Rev. Samuel Savage Lewis. Lewis kept his large antiquarian collection in his rooms in the Old Court at Corpus Christi College. "I think you would like to look into the crypt", said Lewis, as he led his visitors down a narrow spiral staircase into a space filled with ancient lamps, sculpture, coins and pottery. Upon his death in 1891, the collection was left to the College and was displayed in the Parker Library for many years. In 1991 the Lewis Collection made its way to the Fitzwilliam Museum on long term loan and many of the items are currently on display.

This guide allows you to find the objects from the Lewis Collection in the galleries. Just try to picture yourself seeing them in a dusty crypt, with a personal tour by an eccentric gentleman dressed in black.
